Dresden, Germany, May 2009

Dear Friend and Colleague interested in the Prevention of Diabetes

I would like to invite you to join our new initiative to build a network of people active in diabetes prevention world wide.

- Do you think that diabetes prevention is important?
- Do you think that exchanging ideas of people active in the field helps to develop better prevention programmes?
- Would you like to know how others are preventing diabetes around the world?
- Would you like to discuss the development and implementation of diabetes prevention programmes into public health reality?

If you answer YES for one of these questions, you should register in the "Who is Active in Diabetes Prevention" network-directory!

The type 2 diabetes is becoming a major public health concern worldwide. However it has been demonstrated that prevention programmes can significantly reduce the risk of developing diabetes. We know it is not an easy task and this challenge depends of a multidisciplinary collaboration.

Our organization, a non-profit institution led by researchers and health educators, is looking to develop a network as a tool available to all people interested in diabetes prevention. All of them can use this directory to build a network to make prevention of diabetes in practice a reality.

We invite you to register in the directory so that others can find you and you can find other active to prevent diabetes. Together we may start a dynamic discussion, looking for innovation on diabetes prevention within our communities. This directory is completely free for registration, membership and use. As more people are registered the more powerful and useful the network can be, leading to build more opportunities to reach effective and efficient diabetes prevention in our communities. The first language of the network is English; Spanish and German will be added soon and other languages later as required.

If you are interested please register at www.activeindiabetesprevention.com

Please forward this invitation to all persons who are involved or interested in prevention of diabetes - this will be the start of the network.

Sincerely yours,

Prof. Peter Schwarz; Prevention and Care of Diabetes
